Alumni & Current Future Leaders

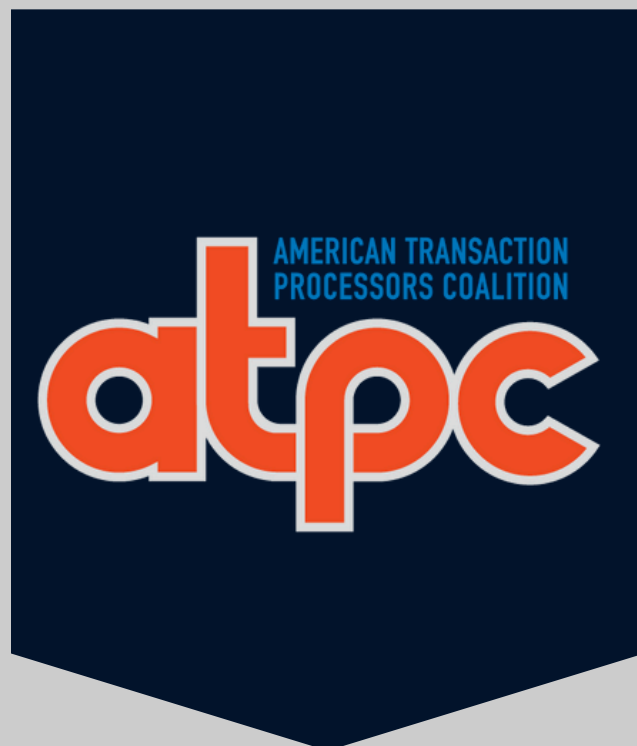

Future Leaders (FL) identifies and educates rising professionals primed to lead the payments processing industry across technological, institutional, business development and workforce portfolios. A yearlong, four-course program also includes multiple networking and educational activities designed to enhance the future success of ATPC member company rising professionals. FL expands industry knowledge, creates onramps to government and regulatory engagement, and develops personal leadership skills for participants.

FL also includes a robust network of 100+ people who participate in events, planning, and a LinkedIn group.

And most importantly, graduates continue to rise within the ranks of payments companies and take the knowledge and relationships from this program with them.

FUTURE LEADERS

2024 Summit

ATPC will host a two-part “homecoming summit” for current and past FL class members on October 8th and 9th in Atlanta. The program begins with a reception open to the FL and ATPC communities, and culminates with a day-long seminar that will further enhance leadership skills, drive understanding of industry trends, and deepen relationships.

This two-day program presents a unique opportunity to network with, support, and engage rising and influential payments professionals

ABOUT US

The ATPC is a leading voice for America's payments processors, driving awareness of the industry and its value to consumers, businesses and the economy with legislators and regulators at federal, state and international levels.

The ATPC is rooted in Georgia's Transaction Alley. Yet, our members enable payments in states across America and in every corner of the globe. The ATPC has a rich history of economic development thought leadership and engagement on legislative and regulatory topics like privacy, financial inclusion, fraud; and emerging themes like open banking, AI, and stable coins.

The ATPC launched in 2014 by introducing the industry to Georgia's Congressional delegation and leaders in the state. Early state economic development wins and universal support from Georgia's Congressional team led to a new "hub-and-spoke" strategy: staff shared the payments industry's critical role with legislators from states across America where our members have significant presences.
